

How to join 'Quilt As You Go' blocks

1. Prepare the joining strips

- a. Cut 2 strips the same length as the blocks to be joined.
 - The strip for the back of the quilt is to be 1 1/8" wide.
 - The strip for the front of the quilt is to be 1 3/4" wide.
- b. Fold the wider strip, which is for the front of the quilt, in half lengthwise and press.

2. Pin and sew both strips to one block

- a. Pin the back strip (NOT folded in half) to the back of the block, with right side of strip facing the back of the block. Start pinning at the corners and ease in as necessary between the corners.
- b. Pin the front strip (folded in half) to the front of the block, aligning raw edges of folded strip with the raw edge of the block. Start pinning at the corners and ease in as necessary between the corners.
- c. Sew both strips to the block in one pass, using a 1/4" seam allowance.

3. Add the next block

- a. Pin the back strip previously attached to block 1 to block 2, with the right side of with the back strip facing the back of the 2nd block. Start pinning at the corners and ease in as necessary between the corners.
- b. Sew with a $\frac{1}{4}$ " seam allowance.

- c. From the quilt front, press the front strip (the folded one) away from the space between the 2 blocks, then fold the strip over to cover the raw edges of the 2 blocks, and press again. Pin in place.

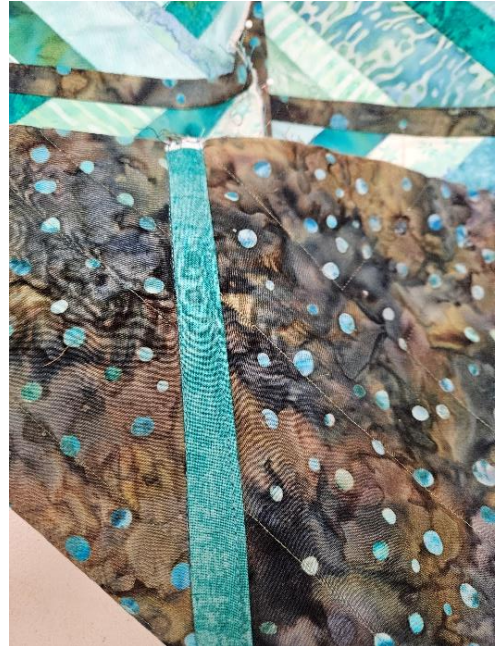

- d. From the quilt front, sew along both edges of the front strip, sewing close to the edges.

View of quilt front:

View of quilt back:

4. Joining a section of joined blocks to another section of joined blocks.

Once you have a number of blocks joined using the steps above, for example you've joined all the blocks in two rows, and you're ready to join these two rows together, follow the steps above but cut the strips to be the length of the row of blocks to be joined.

How to attach binding with no hand sewing

1. Sew binding to the back of the quilt, mitering the corners.
2. Fold the binding to the front of the quilt and use a small amount of school glue to anchor the binding in place. Press to set the glue.
3. Stitch from the quilt front, on the binding, close to the edge.